WASHINGTON-The House givers and harbors committee gave a hearing today on the Beverly harbor project and the to the proposal to spend $123,000 governi ment money on deepening Beverly harbor to 34 feet was that the state would also spend $50,000 on the work and the city $25,000. Representative Humphreys of Mississippi, said he does not see why President of United League to the state should be asked to contri-Confer With Leaders in Lower bute to this project, when other states do not do it.

Chairman Sparkman then said that if Mr. Humphreys had been on the inspection trip to New England he would have understood better the attitude of the people. Representative Barchfield of Pennsylvania said that he did not know of a state that was doing more for its harbors than Massachusetts, and several members at once tried to speak in praise of the Bay State policy. Mr. Barchfield went on to say that Massachusetts was watching the development of New York harbor, and that the people are unanimously behind the policy of booming Boston as a port of entry.

Those who spoke in favor of the pro ject were Mayor Herman A. McDonald, Robert Robertson, representing the Board of Trade; Albert Boyden, representing real estate and business in terests; George E. Sprague and Louis A. Coolidge, treasurer of the United Shoe Machinery Company. Mayor McDonald said Beverly had the best harbor between Boston and Portland and could accommodate 10 battleships. ## LONDON DECREASE IN TWELVE YEARS

LONDON - A paper read by Mrs. Frances Wood before the Royal Statistical Society recently showed that be-London had dropped by 5 per cent.

Mrs. Wood, in the first part of her paper, stated that an attempt had been made to obtain a series of food index numbers for London, so as to compare with the index numbers published by the Board of Trade in their "Annual Abstract of Labor Statistics," which showed the change from year to year in the retail price of the principal articles ANCIENT STATUES TO DECORATE CAIRO SQUARE

> As the result of these investigations the following table was compiled:

and 1912 retail prices in London increased by about 8 per cent. The estimates of the Board of Trade, on the other hand, estimated the increase at about 15 per cent. During this period wages had not risen in the same ratio as prices. While the cost of living had increased by 7 per cent, wages had only risen, when changes in the amount of employment were taken into consideration, by 1 per cent.

Taking the period as a whole, therefore, "real wages" showed a marked decrease. The purpose of the inquiry had been to discover to what extent the prosperity of the working classes in London had altered during late years, and it had been shown that the increase in the cost of living had not been accompanied by a large increase in wages.

BRITISH FEDERAL WORKMEN SEEK BETTER HOMES

(Special to the Monitor) LONDON - The admiralty recently sent a letter to the Strood rural council with reference to the pressing need for housing accommodation for the workmen employed at the powder magazine and other government works within the council's district.

With reference to the proposal of the council that the admiralty should erect cottages, their lordships said that only in very special circumstances could they undertake the provision of housing accommodation for workmen employed in viding cottages they would do their best to stimulate local enterprise.

There's a lot of satisfaction in knowing WHO makes the sausage you eat - also HOW and WHERE it is made. Jones Dairy Farm Sausage is made from the recipe of one of our own Vermont ancestors. Made under our family supervision for 26 years from young pig pork, home-ground spices and salt. Only enough made each day to fill each day's orders, and shipments made daily. More people every single year insist on buying this delicious sausage made only on the Jones Dairy

PIONEER SCHOOL FOR COMMUNITY EXTENSION OPEN

Men and Women Having ice to Society in General

PROFESSORS LECTURE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass .- Problems close to the people were taken up by the Wil-. braham extension school in community development when it opened yesterday afternoon in the Foskit Memorial Grange hall at Wilbraham. Every man and woman there with the serious desire to learn how to be of better service to society in general, was deeply concerned about what the professors from the Massachusetts Agricultural College had to offer for the attainment of worthy ideals in community life.

Prof. E. L. Morgan, community field agent of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, mentioned that the Wilbraham extension school was the first of its kind

This Mark Means Juicy, Sweet Fruit

Oranges and grapefruit are good because of the juice—the pulp has little food value. When you eat an orange or grapefruit, how good it is depends upon the amount of juice it contains.

And when you buy these citrus fruits, whether or not you get your money's worth also depends upon how juicy they are.

Only Tree-Ripened Oranges and Grapefruit Are Fully Filled With Juice, Sweet and Spicy

Oranges and grapefruit must have been tree-ripened to give them the full amount of juice; to which the buyer is entitled. The juice increases in quantity each day while the fruit is ripening on the trees—and becomes sweeter as the citric acid turns to sugar.

Juicy oranges can be grown only under favorable soil and climate conditions, of course, such as are found so generally throughout Florida. The grapefruit grown in Florida has a world-wide reputation for surpassing quality and delicious flavor.

Florida Citrus Exchange Oranges and Grapefruit Are Ripened on the Trees

Only tree-ripened, juicy fruit is put into the market by the growers who form the Florida Citrus Exchange—because they believe in advancing their own interests by protecting the interests of consumers of their fruit.

This spicy, sweet and delicious fruit has splendid keeping qualities. It is carefully handled by white-gloved workers, and no hand touches it in grove or packing house. No child labor is employed by the exchange.

Up-to-date dealers in almost every city sell Florida Citrus Exchange Oranges and Grapefruit. If your grocer doesn't carry them, he will get a supply if you insist. Should you have any difficulty finding the fruit, please write to

To properly perform their functions to the public and expand in facilities and extensions commensurate with the rapd growth of the country's commerce, the railways, should be allowed to charge or their services such rates as will be productive of adequate revenues. It is only by such means that they can establish a credit with bankers which will enable them to borrow money for the pressing requirements which now con ront them. Investors will not buy railway stock or bonds unless assured of as large returns as they can get from other investments. This is a matter of more vital concern to the welfare of the entire people than it is to the individual wners of the railroads.

Considering what the railways have done through the investment of private capital in upbuilding and developing the country, improving the conditions of living, uplifting the people and adding to all comforts and conveniences, they certainly are entitled to such reasonable aid and protection from the authorities as will enable them to continue in their vocation and elevate to a still higher plane the social, commercial, industrial and agricultural conditions of our people. President Wilson has declared:

"The measure of service rendered by business to the people will be the measure by which the merit of business will be judged."

Let us hope that his good offices will succeed in giving this declaration con-crete application, which is all that will be asked for by the railways.

REPRESENTATION KEY

WASHINGTON-Victor Rosewater, edtor of the Omaha Bee, former Republican national committee man from Ne braska, who presided over the Republican national convention at Chicago in 1912, has outlined a comprehensive plan for the reorganization of the party and will submit it to the national committee at ts meeting in this city Dec. 16.

Mr. Rosewater's plan would radically change the system of representation in national conventions. It is but one of a number of similar plans which the national committee will consider, but on account of the party prominence of the man proposing it, many party leaders are giving it a careful study. As a part of the Rosewater plan delegates from the District of Columbia, Hawaii, the Philippines, Alaska and Porto Rico would be deprived of the privilege of voting either in national convention or in its committees, although they would retain their right of debate. This change is closely modeled on the situation obtaining in the House of Representatives, here delegates from the territories have the right of debate but have no vote, either in committee or on the floor of Mr. Rosewater's plan, in brief, is as follows:

Present conditions, however, only afford room for one such daily paper, and each in its peculiar sphere must continue to expand largely in accordance with the growth in ideals of its clientele.

No reform ever came at once, and it usually takes a long time to impress the heedless man with the truths which are patent to those who stop to think, though a truth once seized often becomes so palpable that those who once trampled it under foot will wonder how it ever seemed less than true. But the public taste is improving, and with this improvement, and even sometimes in advance of it, one can see the improvement of the press, for despite the too frequent featuring of undesirable subjects, most newspapers are showing a decided tendency to give more and more space to the various phases of human uplift, and it is not general to find the editorial policy of a newspaper shaped by aught but lofty ideals. "The newspaper style, which is becoming more and more essential in the equipment of every successful writer, is the clearest, most concise, and most interesting style in which things can be strength in destructive criticism rather written." This is perhaps susceptible of than in thoughtful discussion of public two interpretations. The comma after questions—is a failure, whether it suc-"style" may have been interpolated, and public financial support. The newspaper the sense may be that journalists are more and more coming to need a clear, concise and interesting style. Or it may be taken to mean that writers of all pret the world's thought and feeling, kinds are falling back upon newspaper style because they find it the best. But this would be bad news, for while some capital writing is done for newspapers, it does not follow that a method of expression which fits the needs of journalism is equally well fitted for all other purposes. Somebody did once under-take to rewrite the Bible in live snappy English, but apparently nothing came of it; the public seems to prefer/the King James version. But Professor Beckman mean clean of all objectionable matter limits his ground a little: "With all its faults I still believe in the news style news columns, as well as clean in its day for presenting information." And if infinite possibility! "information" be restricted to informa-A case in point is The Christian tion of the sort that lies within the Science Monitor, which, because of its proper range of newspaper endeavor, it produced, and newspaper style is no exception. The newspaper writer does well to base his style on great authors, but he cannot copy their methods. And on the other hand it would be a pity to see authors of essays, fiction, history, or scientific and philosophical writings falling into journalism. It is mainly in construction, however, that the newspaper writer must follow his own path, though within certain limits construction die tates style. He must come to the point; he must not play with his readers. The novelist may hesitate between a dozen ways of getting his facts before the public; the journalist is spared a hesitation which he could not afford, because the one principle which governs him in arranging his material is to tell a plain matter-of-fact tale, making every circumstance as clear as possible as he goes along. Any qualities of style which do not interfere with that purpose he is free to cultivate. There is little room for those qualities called "rhetorical," for he has too many concrete facts to handle to work them into a very elaborate pattern. Good taste, too, is against a bizarre or very pronounced style in a plain record of fact. But within those limits the writer has freedom to write as well as he can, and he often succeeds in writing remarkably well; if his work does no last it is because the material he works with is ephemeral. His writing is best when it fully meets this condition and fits itself perfectly to the case in hand instead of marring a news record with irrelevant embellishments. But precisely because a good news style is so admirable a vehicle for news, writers on other subjects ought not to try to imitate its qualities. If newspapers are popular it

CHARLESTON (W. VA.) GAZETTE-In an address before the Columbia University School of Journalism, General Manager Stone of the Associated Press gives his opinion, as a veteran and an expert, that the American press today pays too much attention to the ephemeral and the inconsequential. And Mr. Stone finds a supporting voice in an editorial in The Christian Science Monitor, the only newspaper, so far as we know, that actually puts into effective practise what sensible men everywhere must know to be true. If the thought and the sentiment of the public are to be educated along lines of wholesome, constructive living and thinking, it must be done by the press. We believe this to be truer of the United States than of any great nation on the earth today. The newspaper that gives more space to accounts of crime and to petty personalia than to the great phases of the world's forward movement, and that spends its editorial ceed financially or not. The journalism that gets no worldwide moral perspective is apt to incline to the inefficient or the vicious. To properly interwe believe that an editor should be singularly sensitive to the varying influences that rise from peoples of every creed, color, nationality and political faith. More than any other man, perhaps, he should acquire and sift all viewpoints, peep at all philosophies, and have a heart for all men. We believe that one of the great weaknesses of many American editors lies in their inability to get away from small things and east the plummet of editorial thought into deep water. It is not merely the climate that makes a visit to Porto Rico so memorable, nor the wonderful richness of scenery and soil, but added to all these the succession of fascinating scenes that this lovely island affords. You can take one of our splendidly equipped steamers any Saturday from New York, and in less than five days you are at San Juan. Then follow dreamy days of discovery ashore, with visits to the the Casa Blanca, the old Spanish Cathedral, where Ponce de Leon's bones are supposed to be entombed; the Obispado, or Bishop's Palace, the Alcaldia and many other fascinating places associated with early Spanish legends. And at nightfall, when you return to wander through terraces and hanging gardens overlooking the sea the music of a distant military band will echo the music in your heart as you thrill with the ro-mance of the scene. New York to San Juan $45.00 and up

CLUBS WANT TO CHARGE FEE IN SCHOOL HALLS

Musical Organizations of Lynn in Move to Amend Law Prohibiting Admission Charge at Entertainments in Auditorium

PETITION IS STARTED

There is a movement under way in musical circles of Lynn to have the state law relative to the use of public school halls amended so that an admission fee may be charged when certain entertainments are given. Petitions are being circulated asking the school committee to take the proper step toward obtaining such an amendment by the incoming Legislature, which convenes in January.

Among the proponents of the change in the law are officials of the Lynn Choral Society and the Lynn Orchestral Club. At the concert given by the two organizations in Odd Fellows hall last night, Francis P. Hazeltine announced that interest in the work had developed so that a larger hall is needed for the concerts. Efforts had been made to obtain the Lynn Classical high school hall but it. was found that the law forbade an admission fee.

As the form of concerts given by the two organizations entailed a large expenditure it was necessary to have paid admission and he pointed out that the law as it now stands tends to prevent many entertainments of a desirable nature being given in the school halls.

Petitions were distributed at last tained from several hundred persons. the Dutch Church of London. Later they will be sent to the Lynn

SIMMONS COLLEGE TO HOLD SPECIAL CHURCH SERVICE

Students and Faculty to Attend Exercises Arranged for Sunday Before Holidays

Simmons College is to establish a new custom Sunday of holding a special church service before the usual holiday recess, largely due to a movement of the dormitory students, headed by Miss Marjory I. Barto, 1914. The service will be held in the Church of the Disciples on Brookline avenue, and is to be attended by all the students and members of the faculty.

The program opens with compositions by Everett, rendered by Mr. Harrington, college organist. The choir will sing three carols. President Henry Lefavour and Dean Sarah Louise Arnold will speak, and poems will be read by Dr. Frank E. Farley. The music is in charge of Miss Mabel W. Daniels, college choirist.

Announcement of the choice for varsity and subvarsity basketball teams has just been made. The varsity team is: Helen M. Anderson '14 and Marjorie Yates '16, forwards; Constance G. Ekstrand '14, center; Gertrude F. Hussey '16 and Lillian F. Nisbet '14, guards. Subvarsity: Alice M. Ray '15 and Harriet Putnam '15, forwards; Marion D. Wheeler '16, center; Marion Titcomb '15 and Ava S. Bassett '14, guards. The class teams will play three games before the spring vacation ..

scurities which the New Haven now guarantees—leaving about $5,000,000 for new construction over a period of years as the only expense to which the road might ultimately be committed by an acceptance of the act.

Mr. Elliott indicates that the New Haven's attitude relative to Massachusetts trolleys must finally depend on future declopments—presumably at Washington. In his letter to the commission he says:

"I transfirit to think the estimate of cost which, under the provisions of section nine of the western Massachusetts trolley act, so-called, is required to be submitted by this company within six merely because the statute seems explicitly to require such action on the part of the company, leaving no discretion in the matter to the company.

UNITED STATES WEATHER BUREAU PREDICTIONS FOR BOSTON AND VI-UNITY: Fair and warmer tonight and Saturday; moderate to brisk westerly winds.

WASHINGTON—The U. S. weather bureau predicts weather as follows for New England: Fair tonight and Saturday, warmer; moderate to brisk southwest and west winds.

Pressure is below the normal through-out the Canadian districts and sections of the north Pacific coast and normal to high elsewhere. Cloudy to partly cloudy weather prevails in all sections and but little precipitation has occurred in the past 24 hours. It is colder in the north-eastern districts, with lowest temperatures of the season, and generally speaking it is somewhat warmer in other districts. The lowest is two below at Northfield, Vt.

C. F. & G. W. Eddy, Inc., of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, received the following from their Chicago correspondent: Wheat-A reaction of about 1/2 cent occurred during today's early session. There was scattered liquidation. Somewhat better crop news came from India and Russia was offering stuff rather freely. The Argentine news somewhat conflicting, but harvesting is progressing rapidly, and exportable surplus estimates vary from 84 to 94,000,000. The movement of spring wheat was fair and the northwestern markets rather heavy. Corn-There was a fair commission house demand to be supplied but this simply limited the decline. The weather is very favorable and an important increase in receipts is looked for. Some of he large houses sold very freely. Argentine crop news is generally favorable.

Oats settled back an additional fraction today. Support does not seem to be persistent. Country receipts fair, while the cash demand lacks volume.

First, I want you to note the inadeoperations of a federal reserve bank.

known to all students of banking, that what we call "inflation or over-expansion of credit" is always the product of excessive loans and discounts, and it may be a matter entirely independent of the issue of bank notes. These are only one form of currency which business is transacted in this country, and they are the least important. The most important currency is the bank check, and behind it is the promissory note deposited in a, bank. Again I want you to bear in mind that the only sure test of credit inflation, whether through the enlargement of note issues or the increase of bank deposits, is a rise of prices which turns the balance of international indebtedness against us and causes an export of gold. These propositions are well understood by the managers of the great banks of Europe. So when the bank of England feels or even forsees an undesirable drain upon its gold reserve, it forces contraction by the restriction of its own credit operations, and thus safeguards itself and the interests of its customers and of the whole country. I may say in passing that these important truths were first given authoritative expression in a document which has become a classic in the annals of European finance, namely the famous bullion report of 1810, which pointed out in the clearest language that the managers of the Bank of England were mistaken in their assumption that an undue expansion of credit was impossible provided it was based on good collateral, and that the foreign exchanges alone could be regarded as the ultimate test or touchstone of the practical wisdom of the bank's operations.

This brings me to the second criticism ure to unite power and responsibility. The regional banks have uncontrolled power to make loans. In the issue of regulation by the central board. ## GETTING AWAY FROM DANGER

An encouraging view is taken of the Ferrin in Moody's Magazine. After giving statistics in proof of his position, he oncludes:

"Underlying conditions are evidently improving, and instead of getting more and more into danger of a financial panic or a commercial collapse, we are getting further away from danger. A year ago the excessive conversion of liquid capital into fixed forms showed that we were exhausting our supplies of capital, and the excessive increases in bank exchanges and railroad earnings displayed a moderate degree of congestion and over-consumption. Since then the situation has been reversed, and statistical indications are that business will soon show a tenthey were in 1908 and 1903."

TECHNOLOGY TO MEET TUFTS IN HOCKEY MATCH

Latter Has Many Greater Boston same effect as turning the light of a Schoolboy Stars in Its Lineup -First Local College Contest I cannot get away, although I know of the Season Here

Followers of hockey in Greater Boston will get their first chance to see an intercollegiate match this fall when Tufts and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology face each other in the Boston Arena this evening. This is the first season that Tufts has made a serious attempt to organize a hockey team, but the abundance of fine material and the earnestness with which the candidates have entered into their work indicates that the Brown and Blue will be repre sented by a fast aggregation.

There are nine former Greater Boston schoolboys on the Tufts first squad Walter Whittaker the former Somerville high athlete, has already won a position on the team and will play rover. and McGrath, both of Somerville high, are working hard to land berths. There should be little to do in the way of changing the rules at the next meet ing of the rules committee. Except for the addition of a field judge and a rule definitely affecting a ball which hits the goal posts on a kickoff, it would seem as if the 1913 code could stand as it is.

MIAL WINS MATCH FOR BILLIARD CUP

NEW YORK-Playing a fine uphill game, Dr. L. L. Mial of New York defeated J. E. Cope Morton of the Union League Club, Philadelphia, for the interstate billiard challenge cup at Arion hall Thursday night, by the score of 300 to 278. The contest was full of excitement and was witnessed by a big gallery. During the early stages of the game the Philadelphian tried to make a runaway match, and at the end of the seventeenth inning had a lead over his opponent of 97 points. From this point Dr. Mial gradually cut down Morton's lead, and II innings later went into first place, from which he was not deposed. It was a splendid exhibition of playing on the confidence of his opponent.

I have to go through the usual performance of waggling, trying the balance, looking down the shafts from each end, with the inevitable result that sooner or later one of them appears to be the very thing that I have been wanting for months.

It is absolutely astonishing how a club appears to be "it" when tried in the shop and still more astonishing how quickly one finds that it is not "it" when taken out on to the links for a trial trip.

Then the thing instantly appears to change its whole character. Instead of the beautifully balanced driver with just the right amount of spring-a precious weapon which aroused visions of long, straight, raking drives-we find that we have acquired an ordinary piece of wood with a stick stuck on to it.

Championships Will Take Place at Virginia, Minn., in February and Record Entry List Is Expected to Compete

TO HAVE NEW SLIDE

VIRGINIA, Minn.-Plans are now being worked out for the holding of the National Ski Association annual championship tournament of 1914 here and the program as outlined at the present time promises to furnish a whole lot of interesting sport to the followers of the game. The tournament will be held in February.

Ski riders from all over the world, including some of the most celebrated men of the Scandinavian peninsula, will attend the tournament, which is the tenth annual one of the association. Arrangements for the tournament, which will include its financing, are in charge of the Virginia Ski Club. Plans are being considered to move the big steel ski slide from its present site on the Iron Range hill to a new location on the line of the electric railway between Eveleth and Gilbert. There it will be reconstructed at a model site and when completed it will be one of the finest structures of its kind in the world. It is expected that some 500 riders will come here for the big event. A large number will come from the Wisconsin and Michigan country, where there are a good many enthusiastic followers of the sport. Officers of the local club are already receiving considerable correspondence about the tournament and it is thus early indicated that there is unusual interest in the Virginia tournament. A. H. Southern States and Presidential Primaries

THE problem involved in governing a federation like the North American Union with nice regard for the sentiments and interests of all its parts is again illustrated, this time in the attitude of the southern states toward the proposal for direct presidential primaries. That party which the South regards as its political friend is in full control of the government at Washington. It has, at least, control of the legislative and executive branches of the government with no reason to doubt the impartial attitude of the supreme court. The Democratic party which carried through a tariff bill, and is quite certain to carry through a currency bill after its liking, should experience little difficulty in putting into actual operation President Wilson's recommendation for a direct presidential primary, providing it were favored and supported as a party measure. Indeed, so many Republicans, regular and progressive, are disposed to favor such a measure, that the Democratic membership of the House and Senate should have less difficulty in handling this matter than it has in dealing with either the tariff or the currency.

But it is by no means certain that the South wants a direct primary. Rather is it pretty well understood that the South looks askance at it. Nobody informed in United States politics will doubt the South's loyalty to the Democratic party or its cheerful willingness, as a rule, to support Democratic policies; but in the present instance the South seems to be convinced that legislation along the line recommended by the President would not be in its political interest—rather quite the reverse.

Our Washington despatches on the subject have gone well into the details. It is only necessary to say here that political conditions in the South are different from what they are in the East or in the West. Southerners themselves frankly complain of apathy among the electors of their section. It is next to impossible, save under extraordinary conditions, to poll a full vote. The total vote of the eleven states of the so-called "solid South" in November, 1912, was slightly less than the Democratic vote of New York state on that day. The Democratic South now wields a potential influence in the Democratic party. If a Democratic candidate for the presidency were to be named by direct vote, the South, it is held, would not be able to influence the result as it does now under the national convention system, with two delegates from each congressional district and four delegates-at-large from each state. While southerners individually, in and out of politics, can see great merit in the direct primary plan, they cannot see how, all the circumstances considered, the South under that system would have any determining weight in the counsels of the Democratic party.

It is not imaginable that the party now dominant in Washington will deliberately or ruthlessly destroy the political influence of a section of the country that has remained true to it through good and evil report, in adversity as well as in prosperity. What seems to be reasonable is that the direct primary proposition will be held over until some means shall be found by which it may be pressed forward with regard for the sentiments and interests of all quarters of the republic. It may seem difficult to govern this federation on that line, but its possibility has been demonstrated time and again.

Fitting Labor Supply Demand

CANADIAN public opinion just now is not over hospitable to immigrants of any kind who come without capital reserves that can tide them over the present period of stringency. The official attitude as yet may not fully reflect this mood, at least toward Europeans; but the mood exists nevertheless, east as well as west. And it is due to economic conditions that make it advisable, for a time at least, to reduce the number of consumers.

The Dominion, like the United States, is feeling the effects of restricted credit and constricted capital in European loaning centers. Its boom has been forced to suffer some deflation. Recent tariff changes in the United States have increased cost of living in Canada through demands of the republic on Canadian food-producing resources. Consequently the supply of unskilled labor needs checking, and is being reduced by state action such as has just been ordered for British Columbia. Neither whites nor Asiatics will secure admission in that province, from this time on up to March 31, if they come to compete in the labor market.

Some will emphasize the racial impartiality of this decree, which is quite proper. The point we wish to call to the attention of the people of the United States is a more important one, namely that the state is controlling immigration with economic and provincial interests in view. Holding to a certain standard of social welfare for those persons already in the community, the collective will decrees that new settlers may be debarred until it seems best for the province to admit them.

The United States has not yet come to the point of asserting any such policy of enlightened self-interest. But it will some day.

Restitution by Lawbreakers Is Educative

Personal pecuniary liability of officials that serve institutions in which funds are deposited for safe keeping and for uses of interchange of business has had a tonic effect on banking standards. A director directs with more thoroughness who knows that his laxity or stupidity may bring him not only social disrepute but also impairment of his own reserve of wealth. No similar liability rests on directors of other quasi-public organizations in which much of the popular wealth is invested; but public opinion is crystallizing in favor of something of the kind, under the illuminating if chilling rain of facts now falling. The formative process is hastened by every disclosure such as that which the interstate commerce commission has just made of the way in which the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad was manipulated by its officials for their own enrichment and a loss of values for investors.

What the commission may recommend in the way of advice to the receivers respecting forcing restitution is not yet known.

Presumably such advice will follow. It should. Investors who have lost are already moving to the same end. But private action is not exemplary enough. Society's representative should take a, hand.

Restitution stands for a very ancient method of achieving justice, and the method still has its merits. No fine by a court, no term of imprisonment, has quite that educational effect upon a lawbreaker of action which compels him, so far as he can, to make good in kind the destruction he has wrought. The effort to repair forces upon the errant individual consideration of the worth of the thing to be repaired. Carried on for any length of time this process is educational in its effect.

Were this special case of official exploitation of a public carrier for personal enrichment made one wherein, through a judicial ruling and subsequent court procedure, there should be a clear definition for the country at large of the responsibilities as well as privileges of directors of railway corporations, it would be well for the body politic. The public feels profoundly about the matter. It would welcome a clean-cut, constructive program of action from the federal courts or from the interstate commerce commission.

THE fact that another of the great universities of the United States is going to see to it that its graduates need not be ignorant of South America is an encouraging sign of the times.

Nation

Must Know

Before

It Will Act

COMPUTATIONS based on the tentative appropriation schedule of the United States national government for the next fiscal year are said to show that no less than $7,000,000 is to be spent for investigations. Compared with the billion-dollar total called for by the same budget estimate, this is a small sum; compared with amount expended a generation ago for preliminary study of issues on which legislation depends it is a huge sum. To some extent the demand which this $7,000,000 appropriation meets is faddistic and inconsequential. A certain percentage of the expenditure will be sheer waste. But, after due discount is made for any catering by Congress to ephemeral and merely fashionable notions of the hour in politics, the substantial fact remains that lawmakers, in response to popular pressure and executives' prods, are deciding to base legislation hereafter on ascertained facts of social structure rather than on assumptions of doctrinaires and of reformers of the deductive type.

More and more the intelligent American democracy is coming to demand that before it decides it shall know. First assemble data as to actual conditions, then advance to safe inductions therefrom -this is coming to be the new law. Neither historical precedent nor the doctrinaire imaginings of the social prophet count today as much as they used to, with a statesman who has touch with the realities of politics and government. He is becoming a follower of the inductive method. The empirical, experimental method of finding a way out of a given impasse gives results which are illuminative to all persons similarly situated. Therefore, if Germany, say, has previously gained information it should be utilized at Washington, and if a principle of taxation has been tested in Australia why ignore the admitted results in enacting new laws for the United States?

Because of this growing disposition to investigate before acting, to know before willing, to "look before you leap," states and lesser political entities henceforth will find this budget item for social investigations a permanent one. But its retention means the elimination of other items now involving huge waste of taxpayers' moneys. Why? Because a higher percentage of good effects is coming in legislation. Statute law and economic law are not to collide as often as in the past. Sentiment may incite as many proposals for the legislative hopper, but fewer of them will go on the statute book.

THE United States government, it is said, will soon issue a bulletin telling householders in the northern states how to heat their, homes nicely in the winter season on one ton of coal a month. This information will be widely and warmly welcomed. The more interest the government takes in coal the more the public will be pleased.

American Trade With South America

WE are informed by the bureau of foreign commerce in Washington that the United States is selling more of its products to South America and buying less from the southern republics. The figures given relate to five of the principal countries of the lower continent-Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Peru and Uruguay. American exports to these for ten months of this year amounted to $108,-300,000 as against $99,000,000 last year.

The imports tell a different story. While they amounted to $163,-600,000 last year, they fell to $129,600,000 this year. American commerce with a single South American republic is significant also. The exports to Argentina increased from $42,000,000 to $46,000,-000 in the period named, while the imports from that country decreased from $28,500,000 to $17,750,000.

The significance of these figures, taken separately or as a whole, does not, however, lie in the increases or the decreases recorded, but rather in the total volume of the commerce. This is a nation which computes the volume of its trade, industry and commerce by the billion. Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Peru and Uruguay are the more advanced of the South American republics and are going forward industrially and commercially by leaps and bounds. The total of the business in which the United States and these five republics have engaged, as represented by the figures given above, is not in excess of that done by certain of the great individual concerns or corporations of this country, and if the showing conveys any lesson of value it is that long neglected intercourse between the United States and its southern neighbors is not as yet giving striking evidence of betterment. Manifestly, if the United States is to secure a market for its products in South America, and if South America is to be brought to the point of recognizing the United States as a market for its products, the propaganda looking to these ends, so disinterestedly and ably and persistently engaged in by private persons and interests, will have to be supported by governmental action. As matters stand at present there is no real commercial intercourse between the two continents; what exists is only an indifferent trading arrangement. When this is better understood the necessary steps will be taken to encourage a commerce that, once properly set in motion, will flow naturally.

COMMON business reasons are sufficient to support amply the movement looking to the consolidation of the three great road improvement organizations of the United States. These are the American Road Builders Association, the American Highway Association and the National Highway Association. Whatever may have been the causes contributing to independent organization originally, these cannot, in view of the present situation, justify a continuance of independent existence. Each of these associations holds an annual convention which is largely attended. The three annual conventions are practically made up of the same people or of representatives of the same interests. It has come to be recognized by many of the active men in each association that one convention annually, representative of the three organizations, would be more serviceable to the cause of improved highways than the three now held separately.

The time for consolidation appears to have arrived, not only because the question of uniting the American Road Builders and the American Highway associations has been brought before the Philadelphia convention of the former, but because questions are likely to arise in Congress at an early day upon which the three associations should be prepared to act unitedly. Federal aid for the highways is to be solicited in some form, and the temper of Congress is such as to favor the belief that some important step toward encouraging state, county and municipal road-building will be taken. One good roads association, represented by a strong and compact committee, would be likely to obtain a readier and more satisfactory bearing than would or could be granted three distinct delegations.

Neither Congress nor the nation is adverse to state and local aid by the federal treasury. There will be widespread opposition, however, to any move looking to the assumption by the government of general highway construction and maintenance. Nothing in the nature of pork-barrel legislation will be tolerated by the electorate, and of this fact Congress is fully aware. If the good roads movement shall be properly presented, if the demands made shall be moderate, or at least rational, and if the matter shall be presented intelligently and so that neither Congress nor the people shall be led. to suspect ulterior purposes, the probabilities will all be in favor of an appropriation of sufficient size to encourage state and local enterprise in road construction.

Although another aviator has looped the loop-this one at a height of 1800 feet and while the wind was blowing sixty miles an hour-what the world is waiting for is a machine that, when it starts out on a straight run just far enough above the housetops to avoid the smoke, can be depended on to come back.

Such success as the Women's Club of New Rochelle, N. Y., has achieved—and those who have read the account of its accomplishments in a recent issue of the Monitor, we believe, will cheerfully concede it to be exceptional-has been due, clearly, to its policy of reinforcing theory with practise. Men's clubs as well as women's clubs, entering into the study of civic problems with a view to their solution, are too often content merely to point out abuses or needs, or to go as far as to offer recommendations for correcting or meeting them, leaving the actual correction to others. Very often campaigns for civic betterment result only in a certain amount of newspaper publicity, in certain promises of reform on the part of municipal authorities. So frequently does agitation for better local administration fail utterly to improve conditions that many people naturally in sympathy with municipal reform have come to hold themselves aloof from movements with this end professedly in view.

Now it appears that the club women of New Rochelle took an altogether different course. They not only uncovered certain unpleasant conditions and called public attention to them, but proceeded to change them for the better. Their very first effort was directed toward the systematic cleaning up of unsightly places, including back yards and vacant lots. This was wise, for its effect was to win back to the cause of civic reform those in New Rochelle who, for the reason given, had become indifferent. Having begun rightly, that is to say practically, they experienced little difficulty in interesting others. Thus, we read, they had not proceeded far before "a prominent citizen" sent them "an unsolicited gift of $500 'to be used for the improvement of New Rochelle.' "

Many women previously unconnected with the Women's Club sought admission to its membership that they might enter upon the activities of its civic department. Nor was it difficult to secure the cooperation of the school children. The interesting summary of the club's achievements, prepared by a correspondent of this newspaper, proves beyond question that the women of New Rochelle concerned in the civic improvement of their town have been moving along rational and effective lines. This statement holds good even with reference to their club publication, the announced contents of the first issues of which deal with matters of the highest local interest. When women engaged in municipal reform get down to caring for the alleys, the back streets, the byways, the back yards, the vacant lots, the lawns and parkways and to writing informingly on such subjects as commission government, sewage and garbage disposal, recreation, municipal ownership and similar subjects, it is high time to congratulate the community to which they are giving their attention.

THE United States navy has now a force of 50,000 men for the first time since the civil war. This probably cannot be helped, but must be endured at present. But it is easy to see how much more valuable the 50,000 would be to the country were they engaged in productive vocations.

NEW YORK, it is announced, is to have a new theater in memory of Edwin Booth. The old Booth theater was anything but a pleasant memory to the great actor. It cost him a great deal more than $450,000, the sum which it is said will be invested in the

THERE still remains to be considered the presidential primary plan that would practically do away with the primary by permitting everybody in the country on election day to vote for the man of his choice without any preliminaries.
